

Who is Caron?

Caron Lindsay is a lifelong LGBT+ ally who is currently Scottish Representative on the Federal People Development Committee. She is a former Scottish Liberal Democrats' Equalities spokesperson, now covering Social Security. She is the editor of Liberal Democrat Voice.

As you can tell, artwork is not one of her strengths.

RE-ELECT CARON LINDSAY 1

Caron's priorities for Plus

- Increase membership by promoting within the party
- Support our LGBT+ candidates for all elections in 2026
- Continue to provide high quality information to parliamentarians and councillors
- Keep trying to get Scottish Plus formally up and running (we are making progress, I promise!)
- Work on policy reflecting the experience of LBT women in healthcare
- Help Plus through the AO review process

Dear Friend

I am standing for re-election to the Plus Executive because I want to be part of our continuing fight to defend and expand the rights of all LGBT people in these increasingly challenging times. A liberal party must stand up for those whose rights are under attack and we must continue to push the party leadership to do the right thing.

We've shown so often that when we work with the liberation organisations across the party, we can achieve great things. We must stand together to protect all our rights as we did during the recent quotas fiasco. That story isn't over yet and we need to ensure that the party does not rest until it finds an inclusive way forward.

Trans people are more exhausted than ever and many live in fear. I want to help develop Plus's continuing work to support trans rights and help those who are struggling.
